Accountant shortage : A Growing Concern in the US?

Struggling to Find Accountants, Businesses Boost Salary Offers, Hire Temporary Workers

A deepening shortage of accountants is driving a growing number of companies to raise salaries or seek temporary help to strengthen their finance teams amid a slowing economy.

Many employers over the past decade have struggled to find qualified workers, a challenge accelerated by a decline in the number of job seekers amid the Covid-19 pandemic. The U.S. labor force has been shrinking since early 2020, as more baby boomers retire.
